

The Pledging Tree Foundation— A case study at the Penn State, Great Valley Campus

Malvern, September 3, 2008: The Pledging Tree Foundation has been selected as one of seven non-profits to be studied at the Penn State Great Valley Campus. The study is being done by graduate students as a part of a Social Entrepreneurship & Community Leadership course. As per the course requirements, TPTF Representatives made a presentation briefly explaining the needs of the organization. During the semester, the student team will perform a detailed analysis and ask questions regarding the organization and/or the team project. The student team will present their plans and recommendations on October 20th, 2008. The team members at The Pledging Tree Foundation are looking forward to hear the presentation.
